Reorganization of DFA's many erfa-groups

Exchange of experience between companies and countries via our many members and their employees is in many ways the core mission of DFA.

That is why we have now started a comprehensive revival process, because although some of the groups continue to run at their best, the meeting activity in many erfa-groups had come to a standstill both because of Covid-19, but also because the members of several groups had changed function, work or resigned. So, it was necessary to investigate who was still interested, so that we could form new groups with participants of approximately the same functional level in each group.

We are close to finish the work of reorganizing DFA's many erfa-groups, and initiatives have also been taken to create a number of new groups within various subject areas.

All the groups have a professional coordinator and it will be that person, who takes the initiative for the next meeting in the group with administrative help from the DFA-secretariat.

Contact the DFA-secretariat if you have an employee whom you would like to join a group.
